Organisations looking for end-of-financial-year rewards or gifts to reward clients or employees can give a memorable gift while supporting the local hospitality industry during the challenging times that restaurateurs currently face.

"Whether the person you're buying for is an acquaintance, or if you know them intimately, a dining gift certificate is definitely a safe option considering most people love to dine at a quality restaurant," said de Groots managing director Maureen de Groot.

Gift certificates can be delivered to the recipient immediately by email or delivered by mail to any location within Australia. The search tools on the website enables search by cuisine and location and sister site Best Restaurants provides opening hours, photos and menus.
